

FOR 100K BUSINESSES

The first 7 days after a sale decide the next 12 months.

Seven days. Seven emails. One job each.

DAY 0. THE IDENTITY EMAIL

One line that names the group they just joined.
Not the product.

Why this matters: the buyer decides in the first minute whether they made the right choice.

DAY 1. THE FIRST-RESULT EMAIL

One specific action that gets a tangible result in 20 minutes.

Why: doing beats watching. A completed task keeps the buyer in the game.

DAY 2. THE PROOF EMAIL

One short story from a real customer who has been using the product for three months.

Why: the new buyer sees what 'stayed' looks like, on purpose.

DAY 3. THE SECOND-USE EMAIL

A prompt to use the product for a different problem.

Why: second use is the earliest strong signal they will stay.

DAY 5. THE OBSTACLE EMAIL

One specific question. Not 'do you need help?'
Something like 'what slowed you down yesterday?'

Why: every reply tells you what to fix in week two.

DAY 7. THE HABIT EMAIL

Suggest a specific standing time each week. '10 am on Tuesdays.'

Why: customers who anchor a time almost never churn inside the first 60 days.

THE ORDER MATTERS

Day 0 sets the tone. Day 1 creates momentum. Day 2 shows what to believe in. Day 3 doubles the reasons to stay. Day 5 gathers data. Day 7 locks it in.
