

NICHE FRAMEWORK

Niche down in 7 days.

Stop generalizing. Stop guessing.

Why this matters

Every generalist copywriter competes with 10,000 other generalists.

A specialized copywriter competes with 30.

Day 1–2: List where you already have interest

5 industries you've spent >20 hours researching for fun.

Not 'could,' have.

Day 3: Meta Ad Library scan

For each of your 5, pull 10 active ads.

Which ones feel alive to you? Which ones have headroom?

Day 4: Prospect count check

Can you name 20 potential clients in each niche from memory?

If not, the niche isn't real enough.

Day 5: Pain identification

What's the one problem every prospect in the niche has?

If you can't name it in one sentence, keep researching.

Day 6: Pick one

The niche that survives days 3–5 AND excites you on day 6 is the winner.

Taste matters. Don't pick the one that only tests well.

Day 7: Write your first teardown

Pick one prospect from your list.

Write a 3-sentence teardown of their current ad.

Send it.

Niche is a who, not a what.

Comment NICHE for the worksheet.

Follow @csos for creative strategy breakdowns.