

FOR 100K BUSINESSES

The seven days after a customer buys, email by email.

Six emails. One week. The window most businesses leave empty.

DAY ZERO. WELCOME FROM A PERSON

One paragraph. Who they have joined. What you will send them this week.

Signed by a real name. No tour. No checklist.

DAY ONE. A SMALL WIN

Point them at one thing they can do with the product today. Something they can point at by the end of the day.

Not a tour. One finished step.

DAY TWO. A REAL STORY

Two or three sentences from another customer, in that customer's own words.

Not a polished case study. A quote, a screenshot, a voice note.

DAY THREE. A SECOND THING THEY CAN DO

The most important email in the set. Point them at a different problem your product or service can also solve.

A customer who uses you for a second thing this week tends to stay.

DAY FIVE. A SPECIFIC QUESTION

Ask what they tried that did not work. Not "do you need help."

A specific question, in one line. A specific answer comes back.

DAY SEVEN. A STANDING TIME

Suggest a day and a moment in their week where this fits. Tuesdays after lunch. Sunday evening.

Turn a purchase into a habit.

THE ORDER, IN ONE VIEW

- 1 Day 0 welcome. Day 1 small win. Day 2 real story.
- 2 Day 3 second use. Day 5 specific question.
- 3 Day 7 standing time. Six emails. One afternoon to write.
